

For patients with limited income or resources

2024 Medicare Low-Income Subsidy¹

Those who qualify may be able to pay less than $12 per prescription for certain drugs.²

What is Medicare Low-Income Subsidy?^{1,3}

Low-Income Subsidy, also referred to as Extra Help, is a federal program that helps people with Medicare pay for prescription drugs.⁴

Patients enrolled in or eligible for Medicare Part D and who also have limited income and resources may qualify for Extra Help

If qualified, patients pay less for premiums, deductibles, and co-payments associated with their prescription drug plan

Do you know someone with Medicare who is struggling to pay for their medication?

They may be able to save up to $4,000 in 2024 through the Extra Help program¹

Who qualifies for Extra Help?

- ✓ Enrolled in or eligible for a Medicare Part D prescription drug plan
 - Extra Help only covers costs associated with Medicare prescription drug coverage³
- ✓ Reside in one of the 50 states or the District of Columbia³
- ✓ Have limited annual income^{1,3}
 - Below $21,870 if single
 - Below $29,580 if married and living with a spouse
- ✓ Have limited total resources (assets)^{1,2,3‡}
 - Below $15,160 if single
 - Below $30,240 if married and living with a spouse
 - These resources include real estate (excluding primary residence), bank accounts, stocks, bonds, mutual funds, Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs), and cash

To find out if a patient qualifies for Extra Help, they may complete a screener or submit an application at the SSA website here

Patients automatically qualify for Extra Help if they are enrolled in Medicare and meet one of the following:⁵

- Have Medicaid (dual eligible)
- Receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI)
- Participate in an eligible Medicare Savings Program

Patients who automatically qualify do not need to submit an application for Extra Help

What benefit may be available for qualifying patients?

Starting in 2024, patients in the Extra Help program will pay no more than $11.20 for certain drugs, depending on specific eligibility requirements.²

For patients who are dual-eligible, and are institutionalized or are receiving home or community-based services

$0 Premium
Deductible
Co-payment

For other Extra Help patients, depending on income, resource level and other factors¹

$0 Premium
Deductible

≤ $4.50 For each generic drug

≤ $11.20 For each brand-name drug

¹Income limits are calculated based on the Federal Poverty Level (FPL), which is a measure of annual income used to determine financial eligibility for certain federal programs.^{1,6} Generally, to qualify for Extra Help, you must have a household annual income that is below 150% of the FPL. However, there are some situations where you may still qualify for Extra Help even if your income is more than 150% of the FPL. These situations may include living in Alaska or Hawaii, having earnings from work, or supporting other family members who live with you. To view the most recent FPL, as well as calculations of the income limits used to determine eligibility for Extra Help, visit aspe.hhs.gov/poverty.^{1,3}

²FPL table rates are published in the Federal Register by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) generally in January³

³When identifying countable resources to determine eligibility for Extra Help, the Social Security Administration excludes $1,500 from an applicant's countable resources if the applicant states that they expect to use a portion of their resources for burial or funeral expenses. For a married couple living together, up to $3,000 is excluded in such cases. All resource limits in this chart include the $1,500 per person burial exclusion.²

⁵Other factors include enrollment in a Medicare prescription drug plan and residence in one of the 50 states or District of Columbia.

Where to apply for Extra Help?^{1,5}

Patients should submit an application to the Social Security Administration (SSA).

Applying is free and can be done at any time in any of the following ways:

Online

At ssa.gov/extrahelp. Patients can also download and print the application, and mail the completed form to their local SSA office

At the local SSA office

Paper applications can be obtained at a local SSA office. Submit completed form in person or via mail to the nearest SSA office. Locate a nearby office using ZIP code at secure.ssa.gov/ICON/main.jsp

By phone

Call 800-772-1213 (TTY 800-325-0778) to apply, request a paper application, or set up an appointment at the local SSA office

A guide to preparing the Extra Help application¹

A patient should gather the following information for themselves (and their spouse if married and living together) before beginning the application process.

Gather records that show income and resources

- Bank statements
- Tax returns
- Investment statements
- Cash at home
- Real estate (other than primary home)
- Payroll slips
- Other statements or certificates

Identify total annual income

- Wages
- Social Security Benefits
- Pension benefits
- Net rental income
- Alimony
- Other sources

Food stamps, housing, energy, disaster assistance, or other exclusions should not be included

Identify the total dollar value of their resources

- Bank accounts
- Stocks, bonds, mutual funds
- Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs)
- Real estate (other than primary residence)
- Rental properties,
- Cash owned alone or with another person (such as spouse)

Home, vehicles, personal possessions, or other exclusions should not be included

A detailed list of resources that do or do not count toward the total assets can be found at ssa.gov/ssi/text-resources-ussi.htm

Unsure if a patient is eligible for Extra Help? Patients can still submit an application. The SSA will review the application and assess how much assistance, if any, the patient is eligible for.

The application is free of charge¹

What happens after submitting an application?^{1,4}

SSA will review the application and determine if a patient qualifies and how much, if any, assistance will be offered. SSA will send a response in the mail, typically within 3-6 weeks.

Important note: Physicians will not receive notification of approval or denial. A patient will need a mailing address and should check it regularly for a paper notification.

Patients with Medicare should enroll in a prescription drug plan if they have not already. Enroll during the Initial Enrollment Period (October 15-December 7) to avoid delay in starting to receive Extra Help benefits^{1,5}

If an Extra Help application is denied, a patient can appeal if they disagree with the decision. SSA will provide instructions on the appeal process¹

Extra Help eligibility may be reviewed periodically. Annual eligibility reviews are conducted, usually at the end of August, and patients selected for review will receive notifications from SSA. Any necessary adjustments to Extra Help will be effective on January 1 of the next calendar year.¹
